

Cornell University
ILR School

Save the Date

Thursday, May 10 – Friday, May 11, 2018

The Taylor Law at 50: Bright Spots and Pressure Points Conference

The New York State Public Employment Relations Board and the ILR School's Scheinman Institute on Conflict Resolution at Cornell University will be holding a special conference recognizing New York's Taylor Law and its substantial influence on public sector labor relations over the past 50 years. The conference will include presentations by practitioners and scholars that showcase the Taylor Law's significant contributions to New York State public sector labor-management relations, examine and assess areas where the Taylor Law's effectiveness has been weakened, and document and analyze emerging and alternative legal and public policy models and frameworks. The program will include a panel of former Chairs reflecting on their time at PERB and the meaning of the Taylor Law.

The day-and-a-half conference will be held on May 10-11, 2018 at The Desmond Hotel and Conference Center in Albany, NY. Details on the program and registration will be available in January 2018 at <http://www.perb.ny.gov/>.

View the Call for Papers here.